

Bay casino idea draws support and opposition

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The idea of a downtown casino had been slammed repeatedly Thursday when Ken Murphy told a large audience of Bay St. Louis citizens the idea is far from dead.

"Don't be closed-minded or short-sighted, because you really don't know what you're talking about," Murphy told the crowd at a Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

In fact, Murphy said, Bay St. Louis citizens one day will thank the Murphys for stimulating economic growth by having opened a casino downtown.

Murphy's family owns Dan B's at the foot of Main Street, site of a proposed small-scale casino. A plan to put a "pub" style casino at the location drew volatile opposition last January, when the Murphys filed a legal notice announcing their intentions.

The issue erupted again Thursday during the commission's second public meeting to collect ideas for a comprehensive development plan for the city. The session dealt specifically with the downtown commercial and waterfront area, and the depot.

By the time Murphy took the microphone, a dozen speakers had preceded him, many contending that a casino shouldn't be allowed in the overall scheme of development.

"A casino downtown is unthinkable," said one of the first speakers, Florence Fetterer.

Hot zoning issue stays in limbo

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Plans for a North Beach Boulevard bed and breakfast establishment remained on the shelf Wednesday, while a roomful of citizens waited to do battle over the issue.

Action on the matter was postponed to July 27, because the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission failed to muster a quorum for the meeting. Officials hope to host the rescheduled meeting at Bay High School auditorium, to accommodate the expected large turnout.

At issue is a proposed "special exception" to city zoning that would allow a bed and breakfast at 1360 North Beach, known as Cedar Haven.

In June, the commission presided over a long, fiery meeting on the issue, but couldn't get a majority agreement on whether to approve or disapprove the proposed establishment.

Instead, the commission tabled the request by Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Woodruff, but promised action at its July session.

While most of the audience at June's meeting stood in opposition to the proposed establishment, a group of supporters has since rallied in favor of it, including the county Tourism and Gaming Association.

The arguments from both sides, however, were muted Wednesday when only three of the seven commissioners were present. Chairman Les Fillingame said Thursday the lack of a quorum was the first time in over two years the commission hasn't had enough members present to meet.

Fillingame himself had missed the meeting -- he was delayed getting back to Bay St. Louis from Birmingham, Ala., where he'd taken some local youths for a soccer tournament. Also missing from the session were commissioners Linda Beauregard, Willie Bradley and Tommy Chapman.

When commissioner David Reynolds announced the Wednesday meeting would have to be rescheduled, some members of the audience were irate, and suggested the debate take place anyway in an "informational" setting.

Reynolds ruled that out, saying it's doubtful the commission legally could conduct any kind of meeting without a quorum. Besides, he said, the missing commissioners would not have the benefit of hearing the discussion before ultimately having to vote on the issue again.

There were suggestions that the absent commissioners could listen to tape recordings of the session, but Reynolds ruled that out as an option.

Reynolds did agree with the suggestion that the July 27 meeting be held in the high school auditorium, however.

Van Norman elected president of POA

James F. Van Norman was elected president of the Diamond-head Property Owners Association on Friday. Other officers and directors who will serve with him for the next two years include vice-president — Mary G. Sindors; secretary — Brierley Acker; treasurer — Paul D. Guichet.

E. George Cassis was named director for a two-year period and Charles Butler, Alywynn J. Cronvich and Jim Hourin will be the directors for four-year terms.

The election of POA officers was rescheduled after a June 18 election failed to produce enough voters. Disputes concerning past president Pete Casano and his administration have plagued the association.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

The weather has been real misery to the South over the last couple of weeks and folks are getting tired of the daily downpours. The sun has been a stranger lately and even when it appears, it's not for long. The black clouds roll in and torrents aren't far behind. How long will this trend last? Only Mother Nature knows for sure. Coast residents have been waiting to return to the beach and their summer activities, but they are losing patience, so hurry up sun, make up your mind and come back to us. The dark skies and laden clouds, in these photos taken on Tuesday at Pass Christian, have become a daily ritual. (Echo staff photos by Charlee Marshall)

Fire!

Central dispatch will replace towers

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Can you imagine not calling the county fire tower to report forest and grass fires? Well, that time is upon us.

The Mississippi State Forestry Commission notified the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Thursday that the state will now be using a central dispatch system. The location that residents of Hancock County will call, in the event of forest or grass fires, will be Wiggins.

To report a fire or receive a burn permit, county residents will now have to call a 1-800 number. In the case of a fire, a plane equipped with high technology radar systems will gather the coordinates of the fire and volunteer fire departments and forestry personnel will be dispatched.

The four planes that the commission will have in service will be located in Wiggins and Hattiesburg.

Apparently this was a plan devised internally by the commission and not done through the legislature.

"I was not aware of this. I have mixed feelings about this, it concerns me greatly," State Senator Bill Johnson said.

State Representative Harry Frierson, who also serves on the agriculture committee, said that he was unaware of the changes that will be made, but said that he would find out what could be done about it.

Forestry Commission representative M.T. Parker said that although there will no longer be personnel in towers, there will be no loss in jobs.

"The personnel will be retrained into other areas," Parker said.

Parker told the board that this is a program that has already been implemented in other states and is now starting in Mississippi. It should be in place by October, he said.

"We hope that our response time will be better than it ever has been," Parker said in response to supervisor's questions concerning the distance that this area is from Wiggins.

He also told the board that the commission will be able to better communicate with the volunteer firemen through their radio communications.

Hancock County Fire Coordinator Richard Pate is very concerned about the change.

"I was not aware of this. That tower has prevented a lot of major fires. I do not believe that this will cut down on our response time. I

Supervisors hold budget hearings

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors met last week to hear from different departments in the county concerning their proposed budgets for the upcoming year.

The sheriff's department, Soil Conservation, Department of Human Resource Agency, Community Action Agency, Chamber of Commerce, Family Child Center and volunteer fire departments were represented.

The supervisors heard recommendations for proposed budgets, but said that they cannot determine if these budgets will be approved until they have determined how much money the county has generated for the upcoming year.

The volunteer fire departments did not request an increase in their budget of $34,246, but did request a $9,040 pay increase for instruction of their clients?

Chemicals (medicines) taken by Alzheimer and other patients are useful and sometimes necessary in treating their illnesses. However, the raw power of natural stimuli such as music surpasses incomparably the meager results of chemicals.

Several years ago, Lana, a friend with a great voice, and I were regaling the occupants of a nursing home with Christmas carols and assorted music. There was the usual, predictable reaction until we hit one particularly lively song.

One of the wheelchair-bound ladies leaped up and, without holding on to the wheelchair, began to sway, move and then jib. She had no cane nor any other visible support.

A nervous, thoughtless nurse flew up to grab her and wrestle her back into the wheelchair. "Daisy hasn't walked in three years!" she said with great concern and anxiety.

I was dumbfounded. Stand near her, yes. Be ready to catch her, yes. But let her jig and perhaps begin to walk again!

Pained by the deterioration of our mothers, fathers and relatives, all of us must push rest homes to improve.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Pointed toward her 93rd birthday on July 16, my mother looks the same whenever she receives a visitor: subdued, wan, distracted, lost in memory, confused in thought. For this, Alzheimer's takes practically all the credit.

On a recent visit, I wheeled her to the community room, parked her chair, began to play the piano and sing "Amazing Grace," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "He Looked Beyond My Fault" and all her favorites followed in order.

Per usual, she perked up immediately, and when "His Eye Is On the Sparrow" was struck up, she positively got carried away. Her fingers, once quite adept at the piano, began to tinker with the keys at the bass end of the keyboard.

Powerful satisfaction settled over me as she dipped her head in unison with the beat and melody; her lips struggling at times, though in vain, to form the lyrics and sing along.

Deep resentment also set in as I came to grips with the same old experience which has been there ever since mother was first taken to the rest home, and which was obviously there long before her arrival.

In a word, seeing such strong evidence of a surge in the patients' awareness, excitement and satisfaction when they are involved in even simple music, why don't the rest homes initiate appropriate musical programs for their clients?

From all reports I have heard, the rest home owners are definitely not hurting for money. It is therefore inexcusable when the only piano in a home remains untuned for years on end. The C chord above middle C is incredibly sour and off.

To rub salt into your wounds, one aide told me as I was leaving, "You must come back soon and play. It would be good if you could come every day."

Fine, except for a minor matter of 210 miles between Lake Charles and New Orleans. Besides, there must surely be a half dozen or more local musicians who would rotate playing for a small fee, perhaps for the mere fulfillment of it.

Is it fulfilling too much of rest home owners to take a small portion of their considerable profit, to invest it in a functional instrument and embark on a music program geared to the interest, stimulation and

The issue came up several more times, although commission chairman Les Fillingame assured the audience that city officials aren't planning to include a casino in the development picture. They aren't planning to specifically exclude it either, said Fillingame, because years from now town residents may want that kind of enterprise downtown.

The city plan will outline development for a "quiet, very quaint waterfront without a casino," Fillingame said.

That concept was endorsed repeatedly throughout the two-hour session. When Murphy took his turn, however, he said he was surprised by the anti-casino sentiment that had been aired, and he asked the audience what they feared from such a development.

Main Street merchant Sandra Smith fired back that a casino would "decimate downtown."

Murphy said the proposed casino wouldn't be "glitzy" or large, but his family doesn't plan to "just stand by and not proceed ... We're going to take full advantage of it," he said of the waterfront property they've owned some 14 years.

In a letter he filed with the commission, Murphy said details of the proposed development haven't been sufficiently finalized to present them at this point. "However, as residents of the city of Bay St. Louis, we can assure you that we are as concerned as are you to see that our development does nothing to take away from the unique character of downtown."

"We believe that when the details of our development are finalized and you have had an opportunity to review our plans, you will agree that this development will be a true asset to the city and will enhance, rather than detract from the downtown image."

Murphy said the city should stick with the recommendations made in a previous comprehensive development study, which would have allowed the casino development at the Murphy's site.

Speaker after speaker, however, repeated opposition to any additional casino in the city. Most endorsed Casino Magic as a fine addition to the city, but said it should remain the city's only gaming facility.

Gaines Kergosien said the city has been blessed with "good, healthy growth" since Casino Magic opened, but he warned that additional gaming facilities would lead to increased social problems. Even as it is, the city would have a major unemployment problem if its only casino were hit by a hurricane, he said.

Other hot topics aired at the Thursday meeting included ideas for a downtown marina, and what type of improvements should be put along the waterfront after the city has a sand beach pumped in.

Some expressed concern over the impact that relocating the courthouse would have on downtown economically. The idea is under study by a citizens' committee.

The marina, an idea under preliminary study by city officials, was proposed in the mid-1980's in the Sand Beach Master Plan. It drew support and opposition Thursday, and warnings that it should be kept small-scale if allowed at all.

Also drawing mixed reaction was the idea of beach-level parking that city officials are considering constructing after the sand renourishment project. Some speakers suggested creating several small city parking lots downtown, in lieu of a beachfront lot.

Several citizens endorsed the idea of the city adopting a preservation "overlay" district, with regulations to safeguard historic properties. Fillingame said such an ordinance will be proposed conceptually in the upcoming plan, and it be drafted after the long-range plan is adopted.

While most speakers encouraged planning to keep the downtown area "quaint" and "charming," some citizens challenged those descriptions.

Sandra Smith said merchants in the 200 block of Main Street have been "terrorized" by undesirable types of customers, including convicts and mentally-ill people who have come to town in the wake of casino development.

She said she had moved here from New Orleans to escape just that type of atmosphere.

Jerry Fisher, owner of the Dock of the Bay, said his business is up significantly since the advent of Coast casinos. "I've got the nicest people coming in my place. I'm glad I'm not up on Main Street where all these hoodlums hang out," he said, drawing laughter from the crowd.

Fisher endorsed the idea of a marina, saying they would serve as a "magnet" to the commercial area. As it stands, however, "our downtown is not charming," Fisher said, pointing to the closed movie theater across the street from his Beach Boulevard restaurant, and the boarded up former department store.

The Planning and Zoning Commission continues its series of meetings Thursday, with a session concerning the highway commercial district. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m., at Bay High Auditorium.

think that it will probably make it worse. We have an excellent response time now. It makes it dangerous for the citizens' homes and property," Pate said.

County Forestry Agent Mark Jamieson said that he believes that the program will work.

"It has to work. It has no choice. We will desperately need the support of the community and have them to report fires that they see. I am worried about the response time. We now have some planes patrolling, but that tower has located a lot of fires that were never reported by anyone," Jamieson said.

The 1-800 number that will be used has not been released yet, Jamieson said.

The board also approved the minutes of the Port and Harbor commission.

— Approved the Planning Commissioners, Election Commissioners and Park Commissioners payroll.

Lockheed gets Stennis contract

NASA has selected a team led by Lockheed Space Operations Inc., Titusville, Fla., for final negotiations leading to award of a seven-year cost-plus-award-fee contract to provide propulsion test and technical services at the John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) in Hancock County.

The total cost for the services is estimated by Lockheed to be $157 million for the seven-year period, plus an additional $197 million for options that NASA may exercise during performance of the contract. The precise contract value will be determined in negotiations between Lockheed and NASA.

Lockheed will provide a broad range of test and technical services to support NASA's propulsion test programs at SSC, including the Space Shuttle Main Engine program; NASA's research and development programs in remote sensing and other space applications; and programs of other resident federal and state agencies engaged in space, oceanography and environmental research at SSC.

Other members of the Lockheed team include Cimarron Software Services Inc., Houston, Texas; Datastar Inc., Picayune; GB Tech Inc., Houston, and Lockheed Engineering & Science Company, Houston.

SSC is NASA's primary test facility for large propulsion systems and serves as the agency's lead center for remote sensing research and development. NASA agency residents include:

Apollo 11: A 25th Anniversary Celebration

"Apollo 11: A 25th Anniversary Celebration" has been scheduled as a special addition to the Evening at the Aquarium series at the J.L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi, according to Dr. John P. Steen, program coordinator.

The presentation on Tuesday, July 26 at 7 p.m. will be given by James Cluff, communication manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

The program, which will feature a NASA video, will commemorate the first manned moon landing in 1969 by astronaut Neil Armstrong.

"Many young people today don't realize the significance of this event," Cluff said. "Even people who viewed Armstrong's first steps on the moon at home on their television sets are unaware of many of the interesting details surrounding the mission."

Cluff, a former communication manager for the U.S. Naval Construction Battalion in Gulfport, has served in his current position at NASA for six years. A Gulfport resident, Cluff earned a degree in environmental science and regional planning from the University of southern Mississippi in 1976 following his graduation from d'Iberville High School.

Evening at the Aquarium is co-sponsored each month by GCRL and the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium. Visitors are invited to tour the center's Aquarium Room following each program.

Supervisors

Richard Pate, who is the county fire marshal, coordinator and investigator.

Pate informed the supervisors of the numerous duties that he performs, many after hours and weekends.

"Fires don't happen during regular working hours. Also, Hancock County has one of the best fire programs in the state," Pate said.

Pate currently earns $16,300 per year and the raise would make his salary comparable to other area counties.

The supervisors told Pate that they are pleased with the work that he has done.

The Community Action Agency also did not request an increase in their budget, but did ask that if the board could afford to increase their $10,000 per year budget, that it would be appreciated.

The Community Action Agency representative also informed the board that the program is also working to obtain a grant to try to rid public housing of drugs.

The Family Child Center requested an increase of $5,000 over their 1993-94 budget of $2,500 due to loss of a grant.

The representative told the board that they need this money in order to offset that loss and that they will also be looking for additional money from other sources.

The Chamber of Commerce requested a $3,436 increase in their budget from $22,914 to $26,350.

Many chamber members were present and the board was told that they have had a 914 percent increase in inquiries and a more than 20 percent increase in membership.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department is considering keeping the same budget that was used last year and using incoming gaming revenue for pay raises.

"Nothing has been decided at this point. Hearings will continue to be held until the budget making process begins. All budgets are proposed budgets at this time and the supervisors have not accepted any of the proposed budgets yet."

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Most of us know our address and that is fine, yet, there are still those who do not know their physical address residing in Hancock County.

This may not sound like a big thing, but really it is during times of emergencies.

Almost on a weekly basis Hancock County's 911 will receive a telephone call from someone with an emergency, police or medical, and they not know their physical address.

Not all deputies, or Mobile Medic technicians know where everyone resides just by their name.

Sure some of these know their mailing address as post office box number so and so, or general delivery, but that is of little help when trying to reach their home in a hurry.

If you have misplaced, or do not know your physical address, especially if you do not have a telephone, it is urgent that you call the Hancock County Tax Collector's office at 467-0130.

Another important thing according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson is to have address numbers placed on a person's residence of mail box. Reflective letters are preferred, but not necessary.

Hancock County's Port & Harbor Executive Director Hal Walters is the scheduled speaker for July's Tourism & Gaming Association's meeting.

The T&G meeting is set for 6 p.m., Monday, July 18 at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Walters who was recently named the new executive director of the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission brings a wealth of experience in economic development to our county.

I am sure Hal will have an interesting talk for us and I am hoping there will be a large turnout of T&G members and guests.

A social mixer is to follow the regular meeting.

It is interesting the amount of rain we have had during the past four weeks.

Just on Thursday Diamondhead received four inches of rain, as we have been getting two, three and four big thunderstorms every day.

Tuesday's big boomer right before noon played havoc with the computer system in the Hancock County Courthouse and Tax Collector's office.

Lightening can really work on computer systems, television sets, portable telephones, radios and even central air conditioning systems.

I still am hearing from folks who would like to cut their grass before a bushhog will be necessary to to the job.

Friday evening I spoke with a truck dispatcher for newsprint in Lofton, Texas, and he said he sure wished they would get a shower or two in his area as it has been extremely dry.

If we could, we sure could send them a shower or two and not miss a drop.

In case you meet one of the many Telephone Pioneer Campers in your business or about town, do not forget to give them a big welcome to Hancock County.

This week the International Telephone Pioneers of American Rally will be held at Buccaneer State Park.

Some 310 camper vehicles are scheduled for Buccaneer in Waveland, so that means a large number of visitors in our area.

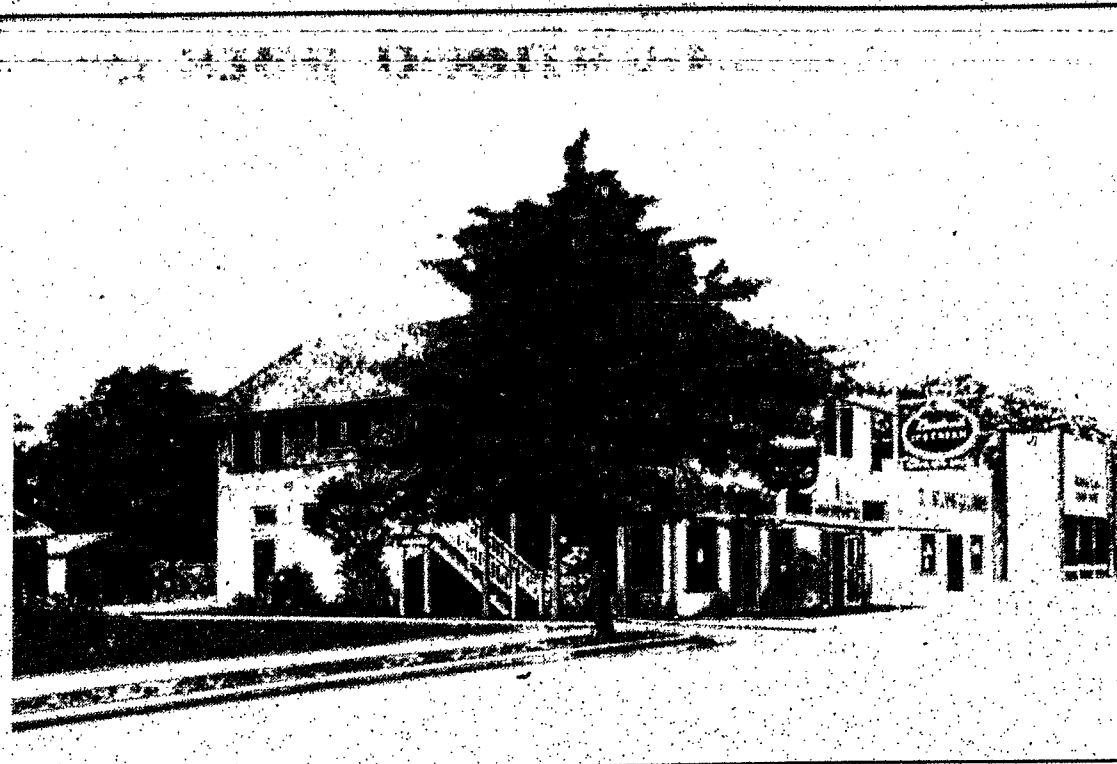

A number of activities have been planned for the visitors from across American and Canada.

This is the second International Rally to be held at Buccaneer by the Telephone Pioneers and I know the hospitality shown in 1990 is the reason the group has returned.

When a group leaves some $400,000 in your county, that is a large number of dollars to turn around six or seven times.

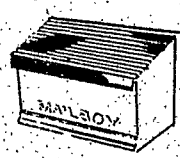

A special thanks has to go to Jay Lagasse, vice-president of the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers, as he has spearheaded the return of the Pioneers to Buccaneer, not to mention the amount of work he has done in making preparations prior to their arrival.

To each and every visitor to Hancock County, we wish them a very big welcome.

Business district

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waveland resident suggests mayor/aldermen platforms

Dear Editor:

Have you given any thought to the coming elections?

Citizens of Waveland will vote for a new mayor and board of aldermen. What do you think their platform should be?

Perhaps you'll have different ideas, but the new mayor should promise to:

— Hold town hall meetings open to public questions and discussions of problems at least once a month.

— Publish a proposed budget weeks prior to its adoption at an open meeting.

— Have a comprehensive plan to maintain our streets and do it.

— Eliminate non-essential programs which rob tax dollars from what's needed.

— Be available at least one day a week in the mayor's office — accessible to one and all.

And it's time aldermen (or women) represent and "vote their constituents' views rather than just be "yes men" to every mayor.

Let's hear what you'd like in our local politicians.

Regards,
Royce P. Kaupp

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Taylor asks Clinton to fire U.S. Surgeon General

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor has strongly urged President Clinton to ask for the resignation of Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders.

In a letter to Clinton, Taylor said he realized that all human beings make mistakes, but Elders' actions have regressed from an occasional faux-pas to a steady rash of blunders.

Ms. Elders has overtly called for the legalization of some illegal drugs, such as marijuana," Taylor said.

"Secondly, as a pro-life advocate, I am appalled by Ms. Elders' actions to initiate and promote the passage of legislation legalizing abortion. I am further offended by her remarks that homosexual sex is normal and healthy."

On April 22, 1994 USA Weekend magazine headlined Elders as advocating the admittance of gays into the Boy Scouts and lesbians into the Girl Scouts. In addition, Elders has been a leader for the rights of gays and lesbians to adopt children.

As a member of Congress representing South Mississippi, Taylor said he can no longer sit idle and watch Ms. Elders shatter the standards of decency that have been a part of this nation for more than 200 years.

"Her policy-making opinions and decisions are being heard by many, and she seems not to regard them as causing any harm," Taylor said.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran applauds bill to fight crime

In a move that reverses the Administration's crime-fighting cuts, the Senate Appropriations Committee has approved a bill, which includes dramatic increases in funding for programs to fight crime, Senator Thad Cochran announced.

"This committee action is very encouraging. It represents a complete change of policy that will be very helpful to local law enforcement agencies," Cochran said.

The committee's bill provides $423 million for a program which provides direct financial assistance to state and local law enforcement agencies for crime-fighting efforts — $65 million more than last year's funding level. The President originally proposed terminating this program.

Cochran said the committee also successfully added $171 million above the President's budget request for the FBI, DEA, U.S. Marshals, and U.S. Attorneys, and $446 million in program increases to control illegal immigration.

"These agencies are on the front lines, especially the Border Patrol, which needs these extra funds to deal with new waves of illegal immigration."

Under the bill's provisions, $175 million would go toward state and regional prison grants and boot camps, $100 million for drug courts, and $66 million for grants under the Violence Against Women Act.

"Overall, the Committee approved $2.9 billion for Department of Justice crime fighting programs, an increase of 30 percent over last year's funding level," Cochran said.

The bill now goes to the Senate floor for consideration.

Bay Council meets in streets

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Bay St. Louis City Council members and the mayor took to the streets Monday afternoon, under dreary, drizzly skies. Heavy traffic whizzed by them, and some drivers honked and waved.

Damp, but undeterred, the officials caravanned from one end of the city to the other along Highway 90, compiling ideas for improving the main route's intersections.

They met up beside the vegetable stand at Beach Boulevard and 90, and worked their way westward to adjournment between the Post Office and Best Pawn on Buslog Street.

At the end of the line, councilmen and the mayor decided to have their recommendations prepared in written form for discussion July 18. Once finalized, the councilmen's ideas will go to consulting engineers to draft preliminary design improvements that may be funded through the state.

The Monday tour was fueled by hopes that the state's appropriations for improving casino-related traffic problems will be spread to Bay St. Louis liberally.

And there was no shortage of ideas among the local officials for dealing with those problems.

Suggestions included installing new turn lanes off streets that feed into Highway 90, lengthening some turning bays existing on the highway, and restriping some intersections. Councilmen also had ideas for

Touring

realigning some of the feeder streets, to make them meet the highway at right angles.

At the foot of the bridge, councilmen want to see the south service road extended beyond its terminus at Second Street, to connect with Dunbar Street further west.

City workers already are constructing improvements to Blue Meadow Road's intersection with Highway 90, and engineers are working on upgrading the traffic signal plan there.

In addition, plans are being drawn to install a signal at Washington Street and Highway 90. City officials had hoped to have a signal installed at Drinkwater Boulevard and the highway, but a state traffic count determined there wasn't sufficient traffic to warrant that light.

City officials said they'll ask for another traffic count once a motel under construction at the intersection is open for business.

Parents' trust must be earned

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

"My parents don't trust me to do anything. I'm 16 years old, and I feel as if I'm being treated as an 8-year-old."

"I'm not allowed to have company or go out with just girls. My parents tell me I'll end up pregnant like other girls. I have tried talking to them, but they just call me stupid."

"A boy wants to date me but can't because my mother says he isn't good enough since he hasn't asked to visit at my house. What good would that do since they won't let me have company? I wouldn't blame him for not wanting to visit after he's heard them fussing at me when we are on the phone."

"I have never been in trouble, and I make good grades. What more can I do to make them trust me besides talking to them? Please help. I have no freedom!"

Your situation sounds very frustrating, and I wish I could help. I know you would like to go out with your male and female friends.

If you've never been in trouble and do well in school, I wonder why your parents are so distrustful.

Have you had older sisters who got pregnant as teens? What kind of reputations do your friends have? If they've been in trouble, that may explain your parents' concern. People who hang out together tend to do a lot of the same things. They may be afraid that the temptation will be too much for you.

You mentioned fussing when you're on the phone. Are there phone rules that you're breaking? What about other behaviors around the house — do you carry out chores cheerfully and without being reminded? Do you treat your parents with respect?

The reason I ask you to answer these questions is you may be doing things or failing to do things that cause your parents to be irritated or feel you are not mature enough to be trusted.

Respect and trust have to be earned.

After you examine your behavior and make sure you are doing what you need to do, I recommend you talk with your parents again. Share your feelings and concerns with them. Listen to the feelings and concerns they express. Ask them specifically what you need to do to earn their trust. Do not argue — just listen.

NRL associate director chairs scientific conference

Dr. Eric O. Hartwig of the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) will serve as program chair for The Oceanography Society (TOS) meeting in Hawaii, July 19-22.

Dr. Hartwig, associate director of research for NRL's Ocean and Atmospheric Science and Technology Directorate, will lead this year's meetings which will provide an international science and policy forum for major international global change programs occurring in the Pacific Basin.

Highlighted programs include the Joint Global Ocean Flux Study, World Ocean Circulation Experiment, Tropical Ocean and Global Atmosphere/Coupled Ocean-Atmosphere Response Effort, and the Ridge Interdisciplinary Global Experiment/Ocean Drilling Program. Major sessions will link the inherent interdisciplinary science and policy benefits of the program.

Researcher needs for an organization that focused on oceanography and the cross disciplinary aspects of oceanography led to the formation of TOS in 1988.

According to executive director Judi Rhodes, Hartwig designed the TOS meeting to link research results with policy implications. This is different from standard scientific-type meetings, providing the scientific and policy making communities a forum to exchange ideas and foster future scientific endeavors of national interest.

Before joining NRL in 1992, Dr. Hartwig held research positions with the Scottish Marine Biological Association, Johns Hopkins University, Marine Ecological Consultants, Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and the Office of Naval Research.

The University of South Alabama has awarded a total of $6,000 in scholarships for the next four years to Scott Eric Wagner, 1994 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, and to Meghan M. Morris, a 1994 graduate of Our Lady Academy.

The graduates have been awarded a $1,500 a year scholarship each, amounting to a total of $6,000 each beginning in the fall quarter of 1994.

The university also awarded a total of $12,000 in scholarships for the next four years to Stacey Ann Ockman, a 1994 graduate of Bay High School. She has been awarded $3,000 a year, amounting to a total of $12,000 beginning in the fall quarter of 1994.

The scholarships require a least a 3.5 GPA and a score of 2 or above on the ACT college entrance exam.

Morris receives scholarship

"USA has the reputation as one of the most modern, comprehensive and outstanding universities in the region and the country," Sterns said. "The quality of our faculty and the facilities at USA enable us to attract students with outstanding academic credentials."

He added that any major university or college would be proud to enroll such exceptional students.

Close study needed to watch comet

Forget the magazine pictures. You'll need a fair-sized telescope to see what happens when Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 collides with Jupiter. Even then, only trained or guided observers may notice anything out of the ordinary.

Fortunately for Jackson, the Davis Planetarium Foundation will provide guidance for this historic event. Beginning Monday, July 18, and continuing each Monday through August 8, instructor Dave Teske will lead his students through comet crashes, lunar landings, the summer Milky Way, and the outer solar system. Skywatchers can register for the course by calling 960-1550.

The course will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. each evening in the Davis Planetarium, then adjourn to the sidewalk for telescope viewing of the heavens. On July 18, all telescopes will be trained on Jupiter.

Jupiter's gravity pulled Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 apart into some two dozen fragments last July when the comet passed near it. Those fragments will plow into Jupiter one after another from July 16 through 22, each delivering energy equivalent to millions of megatons of TNT.

The impacts will all take place on the side of Jupiter facing away from Earth. Jupiter's ten-hour rotation will bring each impact site into view within minutes. However, because the fragments are so much smaller than Jupiter, they may cause little more than storms in Jupiter's cloud belts.

From our vantage point nearly half a billion miles away, the cloud disturbances may not appear any larger than the shadows of Jupiter's largest moons on its cloud tops. The Hubble Space Telescope, orbiting above Earth's turbulent atmosphere, should obtain clearer views, as will the Galileo spacecraft speeding toward Jupiter.

Actually, our distance from this once-in-a-lifetime event has its advantages. If such a string of comet fragments collided with Earth, the resulting upheaval in climate and landforms might well end civilization.

Sixty-five million years ago, such an impact appears to have extinguished most species of life on Earth, including the dinosaurs, leaving a huge crater beneath the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico.

Several times during the last decade, astronomers have discovered after the fact that asteroids have passed near the Earth. Two of these objects came even closer than our moon does.

Eugene and Carolyn Shoemaker, co-discoverers of the comet, have been attempting to detect such asteroids before they approach.

Summer science scholars

More than 20 intellectually gifted and talented students from around Mississippi State University took part in the 1994 Science Camp, one of three Summer Scholar Programs held at MSU. Among those attending were (second from left) Kris Schneider of Hattiesburg, Jolene M. Page of Kiln and Charley Punzo of Biloxi, with camp counselor William "Bo" Roland of Madison, Wisc., (far left) and assistant camp director Joel Rutherford of Starkville (far right).

Star light, star bright

Now that the nights are warm and your favorite TV programs are in reruns, why not do what our ancestors did night after night — star gaze?

And, if you think the Big Dipper is the only thing worth seeing up there, think again.

Dr. John Patrick Lestrade of the physics and astronomy department at Mississippi State University says there is plenty to see in the heavens, if you just know what to look for. "The Summer Triangle is made up of three bright stars from three different constellations," he explains.

The star Deneb is in the Cygnus (swan) constellation, Altair is in the Aquila (eagle) constellation and Vega is in the Lyra (harp) constellation. You'll find the Summer Triangle directly overhead this time of year around 9 p.m.

"If you look carefully at the swan, it looks like it is flying through a river of stars, which is really our own Milky Way Galaxy viewed on the edge,"

Lestrade says.

Other items of interest in the summer sky include:

* Sagittarius, the archer (some think it looks more like a teapot).

* Scorpio, the scorpion.

* Hercules.

But, don't forget one of the more important rules of star gazing — get away from the lights of cities for the best viewing.

State food co-op provides savings

Food Service Administrators must wear many hats—nutritionist, accountant, personnel manager, maintenance supervisor, food technologist and food sanitation supervisor. Today the typical food service operation requires the purchase of 400 plus food items to meet the variety of foods demanded by students and other customers. It is impossible for a single person to be adequately informed and maintain a current knowledge of the products available in the market place with the continuing development of a wide array of processed food products. Therefore, purchasing for school districts presents complicated challenges to food service administrators.

In 1990 many of Mississippi's smaller food purchasing cooperatives decided to disband and form a larger co-operative administered by the State Department of Education to assist districts in the task of purchasing. Mississippi State Law was changed in 1991 to allow the State Department of Education to operate a voluntary state-wide Food Purchasing Co-operative and collect a fee from the member school districts for this service. The statewide co-operative is now two years old and has experienced a 20% growth for the start of the 1995 school year.

Improved quality, service and reduced costs are the benefits school districts are seeking. The basic philosophy of the co-operative places the food manufacturer, the food distributor and the school district representing the children in winning positions.

Local school districts have rated the co-operative's quality of products, ease of administration and overall effectiveness with high marks. A reduction in the amount of time which local district staff devote to purchasing activities was also noted.

Utilizing the unattended electronic system, the State Department of Education calls the 105 member school districts and headstart Agencies between 10:00 p.m. and midnight and retrieves food orders.

The food orders are transmitted to the appropriate contract distributors and the distributors confirm whether the item is in stock. The school district is called again at 2:00 a.m. to "download" the receiving reports. The receiving reports are sent to the school sites the next day and the food order is received on the third day.

Employing the speed of the electronic system, the managers of the food service programs in schools are no longer required to place a new food order before the last order is received. This results in timely, accurate orders.

The documented cost savings is approximately $.015 per meal. Presently 38,390,420 meals are served under the co-operative purchasing program and purchases of the co-operative are approximately $30,000,000 annually.

The annual savings is estimated at $575,856.20, with an additional savings of $180,000 from promotional allowances which manufacturers pay directly to school districts and from a major reduction in school district time devoted to the purchasing option.

For additional information concerning the statewide food co-operative, contact Charles Kirby, Director, Office of Child Nutrition, State Department of Education at 359-2509.

WLOX presents children's special

July 23 at 6:30 p.m. WLOX-TV will air "The Playing It Smart Summer Tour, a 'Children First' special.

Hosted by Ronda Weidner, the program will focus on the many ways Coast kids can play it smart this summer, by exercising their minds and bodies. The Playing It Smart Summer Tour, promotes positive activities and habits for kids that build on the idea that a sound body is a prerequisite for a sound mind.

The half-hour program looks at the places and programs from around the Coast that cater to kids and link the importance of healthy habits like good nutrition, physical fitness and reading to summer fun.

Some of the facts driving the program are:

— Children who do not read during the summer can fall behind in reading as much as one grade level during the summer.

— Forty percent of children between the ages of 5 and 8 already display at least one of the risk factors for heart disease, America's number one killer.

— Almost one-quarter of America's children are obese, which is defined as 20 percent above the ideal weight for sex, height and age.

The Playing It Smart Summer Tour is sponsored by Memorial Hospital at Gulfport and Dr. Gordon L. Stanfield, audiologist, and is a part of WLOX-TV's ongoing public service commitment to the Coast's youth called Children First.

Library names Summer Reading Program winners

More than 800 children participated in "Cool Kids - Hot Books," the 1994 Summer Reading Program sponsored by the Hancock County Library System.

"This was a very successful program for us this year, even though our headquarters facility is under construction and we are housed in temporary quarters," said Prima Plache, library system director.

"Due to the construction, we had to shorten the program by three weeks and hold the activities in the Coast Electric Auditorium. But we still registered a total of 512 children at all three branches, and they read 6,498 books. That means each child read an average 12.7 books over five weeks."

The City-County branch saw 359 children registered, 4,881 books read, and 230 received certificates for making at least four visits to the library and reading a minimum of six books. A total of 874 people attended the various programs held during the five weeks.

At the Waveland branch, 82 children registered, 803 books were read, 45 received certificates, and 262 attended the various programs.

The Kiln branch recorded 71 children, 814 books read, 42 received certificates, and 267 attended the programs.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

Good morning, all you waterlogged, over-worked Mississippians.

The rain in Spain falls mainly on... US! Hey, enough is enough, you folks can stop the rain dance now. You've done your job, I give up!

I know I spoke of the benefits of rain in a previous column, but that was before it rained enough to have people fleeing to the nearest ark.

When I first started writing this column I pledged to always be upbeat and not dabble in political hogwash.

But folks, this has been a very long week, and I think I'm starting to crack under all the pressure.

The first thing I noticed this week was that all my boxer shorts had holes in them or had lost their elasticity, which, of course, means that all week I've been wearing BRIEFS!

I mean if God would have wanted men to wear briefs, Adam would have adorned a rose bush instead of a fig leaf.

The next thing I noticed this week was the fact that I am still not humble enough to use coupons in grocery stores. I mean here I am, a man with a very modest income, supporting two children, and whose debtors now call me just to chat!

I've seen 600-pound folks buying t-bones with food stamps. I've seen glamorous women with rocks the size of Pluto on their fingers handing over 50 cent off coupons for a box of fruit loops.

And yet, the other day I'm standing in line with a hunk of cheddar cheese in one hand and a $1 off coupon in the other hand. I'm getting ready to redeem my discount when this friend steps up behind me.

"Hey Brewer, how ya doing?" Before I knew it, that coupon was back in my pocket, and I was once again paying full price.

Hey, the list goes on and on. Read on! The rain, of course, has chased the kids and me off the beaches and into the living room.

Trust me on this one, it is not pleasurable or safe to keep kids indoors for long periods of time.

I just received a phone call from my eight-year-old son who claims, and I'm not kidding, that my daughter is chasing him around the house armed with a nine-iron, swinging it wildly in an attempt at beheading him. He, of course, is retaliating by using the bedroom lamp as a shield, and our remote controls as grenades.

I'm telling ya', in the last week I've sent my kids to their rooms so much, the doors are coming off the hinges. And another thing, I'm getting a little tired of playing Homer Simpson on that Bart Simpson video game down at our local arcade.

I must admit however that the rain has done wonders for my golf game. I've only lost one ball, and that was at the makeshift miniature golf course at the 4th of July Kids Fair in Paradise.

Well, that's it folks. Hope your week was better than mine. Pass the bacon, and I'll see ya' next week.

Finding moisture source corrects mildew problem

By Anna Minor
MSU Ag Communications

The long, hot days of summer often can include an unwelcome guest to many houses — mildew. But mildew is one summer guest that can be turned away.

Mildew is caused by excess humidity in the air. It appears as dark gray or black spots in damp places, such as bathroom tile, on walls or curtains and on clothes.

"The mistake most people make with mildew is wanting to get rid of the mildew without locating and correcting the source of it," said Dr. Frances Graham, extension housing specialist at Mississippi State University. "Mildew is only a symptom of a problem."

To eliminate mildew in a house, determine the source of the excess humidity.

"One of the main sources of excess humidity is the crawl space under the house," Graham said.

"To remove this source, try building a crest of dirt under the house for water to run off and than placing a layer of polyethylene over the ground."

To cover the crawl space area, use 6 millimeter polyethylene, lapping the seams at least 6 inches. If a house has hardwood floors, the polyethylene should be turned back 18 to 24 inches around the edge of the foundation wall to allow some moisture into the house.

Excess moisture in a house also can occur if landscaping plants are too close to a house. Plantings should be far enough from the house to prevent soil from trapping excess moisture.

"An oversized air conditioner is also a problem," Graham said. "An air conditioner acts as a dehumidifier for a house. If it is not the proper size for the house, it doesn't run long enough to take moisture out of the air."

The size of an air conditioner is determined by the square footage of a house. When choosing an air conditioner, select the size recommended by the dealer.

"Many people think a bigger air conditioner will keep their house cooler," Graham said. "This is not the case. The house will not be any cooler and will have excess moisture problems."

Other sources of moisture in a house include leaks in the plumbing, cooking, laundering and bathing without proper ventilation.

"Basic construction techniques can prevent or minimize most household moisture problems," Graham said. "Insulation, weatherstripping, storm doors and windows used with adequate ventilation can help homeowners maintain comfortable living environments without the problems associated with excess moisture."

Graham also recommends keeping roof turbines and crawl space vents open year round to take excess moisture from the air.

However, tips on preventing mildew do not help a homeowner who already has mildew growing on a household surface. The mildew first must be removed.

"To remove mildew from surfaces, scrub thoroughly with a solution consisting of 8 to 12 ounces of liquid household chlorine bleach, 2 ounces of liquid dishwashing detergent and 1 gallon of water," Graham said.

Graham urges caution when using bleach around furnishings and carpeting since the solution can remove the color.

Ballet Place hat is a lucky charm

The International Ballet Competition (the Olympics of ballet) only comes to the U.S. every four years and by some miracle, Jackson, Mississippi has been chosen the proud host of this prestigious event!

Some 30 students of The Ballet Place of Bay St. Louis scraped and saved to make the trip to see the last two nights (the final round) of the competition. By the final round, most of the dancers have been eliminated and only the best of the best remain. Finalists included about 45 from all over the world.

After watching four hours of ballet each night and taking notes on who they liked, The Ballet Place students had chosen Dai Sasaki as their favorite and had befriended the super star professional from Japan, who now performs in Moscow. They presented him with a Ballet Place hat, which he was seen wearing everywhere he went for the rest of the competition.

He claimed the hat was his lucky charm when the winners were announced and he had won the gold medal in the men's senior division.

State games draw 3,200 amateur athletes

The 1994 State Games of Mississippi drew more than 3,200 athletes, coaches and officials to the Meridian area for the third annual sportsfest, said Bill Elliott, chairman of the State Games board.

More than 140 Mississippi communities were represented, and more than 75 percent of the participants hailed from outside Lauderdale County.

"The games were tremendously successful this year," Elliott said. "We can't say enough about the many visitors in our area who were excited to be here for great competition.

They were everywhere in Meridian, competing and watching other competitions. Meridian, Lauderdale and Newton counties were proud to host these fine competitors."

The games bring together amateur athletes from across Mississippi to compete in a weekend sportsfest. As one of 47 other states with state games competition, the State Games of Mississippi has grown 71 percent in the number of participants since the first games in 1992.

Patterned after Olympic competition, the event came complete with opening ceremonies, including the lighting of the torch and a parade of athletes. Olympic gold medalist (1960 long jump) and Mississippian Ralph Boston was on hand to speak to the athletes.

The games offer an opportunity for athletes of all ages to compete in a variety of sports. Winners were awarded gold, silver and bronze medals.

"Not only did the athletes turn out in record number for this year's event," said Janice Vannatta, executive director of the games, "we had a record number of volunteers on hand to help. We are deeply indebted to our volunteers from Meridian and across Mississippi, because without them the various events would not have run as smoothly as they did."

Planning is already under way for next year's state games set for June 23-25, 1995, in Meridian.

4-H Leaders

4-H leaders recently attended the Volunteer Leaders Forum in Poplarville. Participants were trained in stress management, updated on the livestock projects and learned ways to involve youth through new 4-H program materials. Representing Hancock County were, from left, Home Economist/4-H Darlene Underwood, Cindy and Ray Spiers, Lisa and Kenny Seals and Pat and Wade Ladrner.

Struggle for svelte figure may lead to bulimia, anorexia nervosa

Turn on the TV or pick up almost any magazine, and the message is clear: Being thin is the key to happiness. For some young women, however, the struggle for a svelte figure doesn't lead to happiness but potentially lethal eating disorders called anorexia nervosa and bulimia.

According to Dr. Mona Castle, a physician with The University of Mississippi's Student Health Services, anorexia nervosa is the denial or suppression of appetite which eventually results in self-starvation. Bulimia is an abnormally voracious appetite followed by purging the body of food through vomiting or laxatives. Adolescent girls and young women are most at risk for the two disorders.

"Both disorders can lead to serious health problems but are often difficult to diagnose. These individuals are usually adept at hiding their problems and are often in denial. They seek medical help for related problems, so doctors and parents need to be aware of the warning signs," the physician said.

However, professional care is needed to treat both psychological disorders, and the earlier the diagnosis, the sooner normal mental and physical health can be regained, said Dr. Castle, who offers the following guidelines to recognize these disorders:

Signs of anorexia nervosa: Impaired performance; weight loss from 5 to 15 percent of ideal weight; continuing to feel fat; obsession with weight, diet and appearance; avoiding social eating situations; social withdrawal; obsession with exercise; ambivalence about femininity; feeling cold; weakness and dizziness; decline in physical and academic performance; and a yellow tint to hands.

Medical problems related to anorexia nervosa: Chronic illness, irregularity or the absence of menstrual periods, low blood pressure, cardiac problems, anemia and malnourishment, high risk of suicide, and decreased kidney function.

Signs of bulimia: Irregular weight loss/gain, erratic performance, swollen salivatory glands, poor dental hygiene, foul breath, recurrent sore throats, low self esteem, dizziness, drug and alcohol abuse, binges or eats large meals and then disappears, dry mouth, cracked lips, scabs on knuckles, diarrhea alternating with constipation, and red, puffy eyes.

Medical problems related to bulimia: Fluid loss or retention due to electrolyte imbalances, loss of dental enamel, menstrual irregularities, irregular heartbeat, low blood pressure, anemia and malnourishment, high risk of suicide, muscle weakness, aspiration pneumonia, depression and ruptured blood vessels in the eye.

Money available for home improvement grants and loans

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income there are Federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in our country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. When the homes look shabby, a neighborhood seems more attractive to crime and criminals. An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become shabby looking and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels or at no interest. In many areas utility companies will either do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lend homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

These programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods. Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible. While the grants do not have to be repaid, most of the loans offer low or no-interest, long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home improvements covered under these programs are: attic and wall insulation, new windows, overhauled siding, security doors, and locks, window guards, sidewalks and masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing, new roofs, gutters, and downspouts.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group formed in 1969, has just published the 208 large-page, 1994 edition of Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans ($16.95 plus $3 p&h from CERC GRANTS, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, NJ 07050 or 800-872-0121) which lists over 7,000 sources of loan and grant programs offered by Federal, state and local government, utility companies and others; typical programs offered and the how to qualify. Form letters for inquiries to these loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining your debt-to-income ratio for eligibility.

Robert L. Berko, executive director of CERC, tells us, "Some programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $50,000 per year or more. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans to poor credit risks. In many areas; people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book includes a section describing the rough cost of the cost of many jobs as well as advice on picking a contractor, negotiating a contract, and insuring that the work is done properly and for a fair price. And to help you communicate with your contractor, lawyer and lender, the book includes a dictionary of terms used by these professionals.
